Winning Back America

"I say it is time for us to come together as one united people," Trump said at his victory party in New York. "I pledge to every citizen of our land that I will be president for all Americans."

Donald Trump pulled off a stunning victory after the most unprecedented of presidential campaigns. More voters cast ballots in November's election than when President Obama won re-election in 2012! Donald Trump started a movement, an uprising. He inspired average Americans, those who have been working hard and getting left behind, that they could "drain the swamp." He tapped into their anxiety about the present and the fear of the future, and in doing so, brought new voters to the polls.

These conservative donors took this movement to the state and local levels and want to continue the momentum started during the 2016 presidential election cycle. The local and state races of 2018 are going to be substantial, and those elections are imperative to "Winning Back America!" These donors are NOT tired of winning!
