

National Campaign Fund

During the 2008 Presidential election cycle, National Campaign Fund started a project called "Expose Obama.com". Its mission was to put up a solid and united conservative defense against the socialist reign of Barack Obama.

Obama may have won the election, but he will never win the hearts of these conservative donors. These are donors who continue to respond to the fight against the un-American, liberal agenda being imposed by this President and his fellow socialist-minded, far-left Administration. They want their conservative voice heard from the White House to Capitol Hill. This group is a must test for any conservative Republican organization or candidate.
